

Lucinda Boyd

Biography

Born in England in 1954, Lucinda Boyd is a self taught artist. Her parents, David and Hermia Boyd encouraged their children to paint and draw from an early age and gave helpful advice on technique and use of various media. Lucinda studied life-drawing, etching and later hand wrought jewellery making.

Lucinda began working with pastels after moving from Sydney to the Hunter Valley in 1983. This move gave her the first opportunity to observe the Australian bush for any length of time. A series of landscapes was produced and in 1985 Lucinda held her first solo exhibition at the Von Bertouch Galleries in Newcastle.

Principally working with pastels, a medium Lucinda feels best suits her interpretation of the mood of the Australian landscape, she moved in 1997 to Reidsdale which is located on the south-eastern fall of the Southern Tablelands. The quality of the light and the colours of the surrounding bush have been the inspiration for her recent work.

Lucinda Boyd's work is held in private and corporate collections across Australia, in the United Kingdom, France and the USA.
